Got the Florist

MRS. PRESCOTT had just heard of the illness of a dear friend. She was about to leave town that morning for an extended trip. There was no time to call. Turning to the telephone, she got the florist and ordered a choice selection of roses sent with her card to the address of the invalid.

Without the telephone she would have been unable to do this little act of kindness.

UNCLE DAVE'S LETTER.

Improving the County Fair. "Uncle Jim" Wilson, who was once Uncle Sam's head farmer, now proposes to use the county fairs of the country as the chief disseminators of the gospel of the new agriculture. He has written a booklet of about thirty pages on the subject of "Agricultural Fair Associations and Their Utilization in Agricultural Education and Improvement."

In his introductory remarks, Mr. Wilson says: Now that a systematic effort is being made by the agricultural colleges and experiment stations, as well as by the state and national departments of agriculture, to carry agricultural instruction to the great body of rural people, the importance of having efficient local agencies in each community through which to operate is being realized as never before.

There are in this country today over 1,400 county fair associations with 250,000 members. Their gross receipts annually are about $6,500,000 and their expenditures for premiums are nearly $2,500,000. It is estimated that 16,000,000 people attended the exhibitions of these organizations last year. In addition there are twenty state associations which held fairs last year, having an aggregate attendance of 1,700,000. While giving the fairs credit for all the good it has done, Mr. Wilson thinks it could do a great deal more. He says that "its activities need to be redirected and enlarged to fit the fair association of today to take advantage of the opportunities for rural betterment that lie before it." He insists that, first of all, the fair must be loyal to its own constituency and the agricultural public, and must not be severed from serving them in the most effective way, by any influence promising great financial returns. He suggests these things as of first importance.

The basis of the fair should be exhibits from the farm, the garden, the household, forest products, agricultural implements, models of country homes and schools.

Disinterested experts nominated by the state agricultural colleges should judge all exhibits.

Contests in crop production, animal breeding and feeding and other agricultural operations should be organized early in the year, the results to be exhibited at the fair.

Suitable entertainments should be provided for patrons of the fair, but they should not be allowed to interfere with the main exhibition and the more serious purposes of the fair.

All disreputable shows, gambling devices and loud, coarse fakers with monkey circuses to exhibit should be rightly excluded from the grounds.

Nothing that the most refined and modest woman might not see and hear should be admitted.

Mr. Wilson is full of things that should be seen at the fairs. He suggests:

Certain stated periods each day should be devoted to demonstrations to be held at different places on the grounds. These demonstrations might be the packing of fruit, the use of the Babcock test; spraying operations, including the mixing of sprays as well as their application; killing, dressing and packing poultry for market, sanitary handling of milk; transplanting, budding and pruning trees; seed selection; germination tests; laying out and planting garden plots; stock judging; canning, preserving and drying fruits; cheese making; butter making, testing agricultural machinery; disinfecting rooms, stables and clothing; conducting cooking, dress-making and millinery schools; demonstration plow work; plowing matches and similar contests.

Compliance with the recommendation of Mr. Wilson certainly would enhance the interest and usefulness of all the county fairs. No other institution affords such an opportunity for bringing together those engaged or interested in agricultural production. As upon it is mainly based the cost of living, every citizen of this country is interested in it. The present prices of all farm commodities prove the necessity for increased production because it is the best place to demonstrate the innumerable ways in which the farmer may increase his products with the minimum of expense, the county fair should be brought up to the standard aimed at by Mr. Wilson.

Home. If all the words in the English language, or any other language, or all the languages, could be reflected upon one vast scroll to our wondering gaze, none would so appeal to our heart, sink into his depths and give us that glad, sweet feeling of rest and rest as that little familiar word, Home.

Around it are associated the dearest memories of childhood, the dearest memories of mother and father. Some one has said, that to Adam "Paradise was home," and to all his good descendants home has been paradise ever since. One can never have attained the full measure of manhood, or realize the sweetest pleasures in living, who has not known and enjoyed the sanctity of his own home, where every timber in its walls, every brick in its hearth, every smiling bud upon the trees, and every blade of green grass in the spring time is full of interest to him. No man should be content with a temporary home under somebody else's roof, but have an ambition which never rests until within the paradise of his own abiding place.

UNCLE DAVE.

And Some Nothing Better. "Say, did you ever know a woman to buy what she wanted at the first store she came to? Yes, my wife frequently does that. It returns to it after she's been to all the other stores."

MARKET REPORT

New York Cotton

(By Associated Press.)

New York, August 20.—An official cable received here today reported that a committee of three would sail for New York on Saturday's steamer to confer with committees of the New York and New Orleans exchange with a view to unravelling international commitments.

This news was favorably received in local circles, as it was considered likely to lead to a solution of one of the more difficult problems of the committee on liquidation, while it was also reported that many domestic mills had already indicated their willingness to meet yesterday's suggestions for the protection of the southern hedge interest.

Plans are said to have been formulated to promote liquidation of the small remaining speculative interest. Otherwise no material change was reported in the situation.

Spot market was not officially quoted.

The cotton exchange today announced that a meeting of its members will be held at noon August 23 to consider changes in the by-laws to conform with a new cotton futures law.

Liverpool Cotton

Liverpool, August 20.—Cotton spot sales 1850 bales, including 1700 American on the basis of 6.20d for middling. No receipts.

Cotton Seed Oil

New York, August 20.—Cotton seed oil was higher for spots on demand from Europe and light offerings, while futures were barely steady under fears of increased crude offerings and lack of bull support. August closed 7 points net higher, and on other months 2 higher to 2 lower. Sales 2,800 barrels.

The market closed steady. Spot 658a670; August 660a61; September 656a67; October 644a56; November 634a39; December 636a39; January 638a40; February 639a43; March 646a49.

DRY GOODS MARKET

New York, August 20.—Cotton goods markets were quiet today. Raw silk was higher. Men's wear for fall was in light demand. The difficulty in obtaining dyes and stuffs for textiles is becoming more acute and checking forward business.

MONEY ON CALL

New York, August 20.—Mercantile paper, 6 to 7. Sterling, exchange nominal; for cables, 50; for demand 502.50.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, August 20.—Yesterday's gain in wheat was lost in profit taking sales today and the close was weak two to 2 1/2c net lower. Corn dropped 1/4-1/2c; oats 5-8c and provisions 1/2 to 3/4c lower. The market was also purely speculative.

Stocks and Bonds

New York, August 20.—Except for the stock exchange and the foreign exchange situation, where the deadlock remains unbroken, there is increasing evidence that the domestic financial situation is moving into smoother waters.

Financial situations throughout the country are relaxing funds with more freedom than was deemed possible a week ago and the mercantile world is heartened by a broader inquiry from commercial paper. In the money market today some loans were renewed at six per cent but the prevailing rate was nearer seven per cent.

Regarding the stock exchange situation there were rumors of the formation, in a tentative way, of a banking syndicate aggregating at least $20,000,000 designated to support the market, once operations are resumed. Needless to say these rumors like confirmation of authoritative quarters, but it is generally believed that protective measures of this or similar character will be undertaken before the exchange reopens.

JENNINGS ON ANDREWS

Manning, Aug. 12.—Upon rejoicing the campaign party here Wednesday, Hon. Lang D. Jennings, mayor of Sumter, made a scathing denunciation of the treatment he had received at the hands of the mayor of a sister city, Georgetown, when W. H. Andrews, manager of a corporation controlling the timber of interests of nearly the entire section of the state, had permitted Mr. Jennings to be treated outrageously by employes of the company.

Mr. Jennings' introduction was delayed a few minutes by the daily exodus incident to the governor's departure from the stand. He called attention to the large number of negroes in the crowd following the governor, saying, perhaps they were a "part of the 900 he's turned out." There were more than 100 negroes in the audience during the day.

In expressing his resentment of the discourtesy shown him in Georgetown Monday and in denouncing Mayor Andrews, Mr. Jennings declared that some years ago when Georgetown was threatened with an uprising of the negroes, the mayor of that city called on the mayor of Sumter for assistance but said the speaker, when the mayor of Sumter tried to make a speech in Georgetown, the mayor of the city and the chief of police sat on the stand and smiled at the howling down of Sumter's mayor.

Mr. Jennings said he had heard of Governor Bleas's machine, but had never seen it in operation until he went to Georgetown. He declared that notwithstanding Governor Bleas's constant abuse of corporations, one of the governor's greatest supporters is in charge of the biggest corporation in South Carolina that "has robbed more people" than any other. "I mean the Atlantic Coast Lumber Corporation," said the speaker, who added that a "bunch of Western Yankees," who have been here long enough to vote, can't run South Carolina like they do Georgetown.

Bleas and Blind Tigers. The speaker said that blind tigers know they have a friend in the governor's office and, like the rabbit and the bull dog, are so bold that they do not hesitate "to spit in the law's face." Mr. Jennings declared he had never heard records so abused as they have been by Governor Bleas, proceeding to a discussion of the one mill school tax, for which Governor Bleas claimed credit. The speaker declared that, although the governor did recommend such a tax when the legislature passed the bill, the governor vetoed it, and the measure was passed over the veto this, said Mr. Jennings, not being told by the governor.

Mr. Jennings said the governor had been romping all over the state fooling the people, but that "his bluff is called now." During a discussion of the governor's previous record, Mr. Jennings said the Executive would make a good senator for "Andrews and that bunch down at Georgetown," adding, "I would just as leave have Andrews represent me in the senate."

Mr. Jennings, to loud applause, closed by reading the following:

One night I laid me down to sleep, In peace and ease to dwell; And dreamed I saw a mighty horde Go rushing on to hell.

I stood and gazed upon the scene, Boreft of peace and ease, And asked an imp the leader's name; He told me—"Cole L. Bleas."

I said to him, "Turn back turn back, And with good people dwell;" "No, no," said he, "we're going down To turn loose all in hell."

"Our band is now twelve hundred strong; We know our leader well; Just get up a petition— He'll free the whole of hell!"

He servant stands for itself and I will appreciate the votes of the people of this county.
